Arrowhead Olives Are Tree Ripened

Picked when well ripened, cured by Kubias' own process which retains all the natural oil, they are different from all other brands.

The fact that they are not uniform in color, is proof they are not green olives artificially colored. 30c qt.

Club Held Annual Picnic

The annual picnic of the Countrywoman's Club Monday was a thoroly enjoyable occasion. The tables, prettily decorated with ferns and flowers, had been arranged on the lawn under the shade of huge cherry and date palm trees, and fairly groaned under the weight of good things provided by the members.

Over forty sat down to dinner, shortly after twelve and spent a very pleasant hour. Before the time for the program, several enjoyed the croquet court, while others visited and plied their needles on fancy work.

The program was given from the front porch, the piano having been moved to an open window.

Mrs. A. N. Aitken of San Leandro, a former president of this Club, gave a most delightfully entertaining and instructive address on "The Romance of California Names," and the only criticism was that she didn't "continue on."

Mrs. Warren Shelly and Miss Marion Duncan delighted the company with their rendition of that old favorite, "Oh, That We Two Were Maying." Mrs. Shelly followed with two charming solos, and Miss Ruth Lloyd played two violin solos, her encore particularly captivating her hearers. Mrs. G. S. Robson was at the piano. The hostess, Mrs. Crothers, then surprised both committee and guests with two piano numbers of unusual merit.

The thanks of the Club were extended Dr. and Mrs. Crothers for their hospitality, and to those who had given such a pleasant program.

The committee, Mesdames Ludwig, Mendel, Righter and Bean are deserving of much credit for the work and planning which they had done, that added so materially to the pleasure of the day.

A Bad Accident

Miss Jeanette Cairns and her brother, Robert, while driving on Parr avenue Saturday afternoon were struck by a speeding automobile which had just rounded a corner ahead of them. Miss Cairns received a deep cut across the cheek and was considerably bruised. One horse was so badly injured that it will doubtless die and both vehicles were badly wrecked. The automobile was the property of the Downey Glass and Paint Co. of Oakland. It was occupied by two men, salesmen for the firm, one of whom sustained a cut in the hand. They were picked up by a passing machine before their names were learned, and it is not known where they went.

Mr. and Miss Cairns are the son and daughter of R. E. Cairns, a rancher on Los Gatos Road. They had been for a week in the Santa Cruz Mountains, at a cherry orchard belonging to their father, and were on their way home, driving a two-horse fruit truck loaded with orchard wood, camp utensils and cherries, —some canned. When just south of Curry's corner, on Parr avenue, the automobile, traveling in the opposite direction rounded the corner ahead of them. The truck was on the right side of the road, which was the outside. But the machine was going at such a terrific pace that it could not round the corner and keep its own side of the road. Mr. Cairns says that the driver put on the brakes and tried his best to stop his machine. But in a moment the truck seemed to be knocked from under the occupants, one of whom struck the ground to the left of the truck and the other to the right. The front wheels were broken, the tongue broken in three pieces, and the load scattered about the road. The broken parts of the automobile also strewed the roadway.

A lady coming along in a machine took Miss Cairns to Campbell, to Dr. Merrill's office, where Dr. Cooper attended to the wound, taking fourteen stitches. After she was removed to her home, Dr. Irving Beattie, their regular physician was called, who pronounced the injury not such as to produce any serious results. Mr. Cairns was not hurt. One horse was unhurt. The other, tho horribly wounded, after receiving the services of a veterinary was able to be taken home.

Graduation Exercises

Very pretty graduation exercises were held last Friday morning at the Cambrian grammar school. Seats and a platform had been arranged in the spacious yard, which is beautiful with large pepper trees and other foliage.

The class colors of blue and gold were carried out in the decorations by larkspurs and poppies.

The entire school took part in the program, marching in double column to their places.

The program follows: Song, "Hark, Hark! the Lark," by the school; song, "Spring Eternal," by the school; class president's address, Howard Sturtevant; piano solo, Dorothy Martin; "Cambrian School," Elmer Chase; song, "The Spring Has Come," the school; quotations, David Price and Laura Lopes; vocal solos, Miss Bess Kreiss; presentation of class gift, Verna Cutting; response, Leslie Cairns; song, "Quotations," school; address, Mr. Arthur Free; presentation of diplomas, D. T. Bateman; "Aloha Oe."

The numbers given by the members of the class and the songs by the school show careful training and preparation.

Many favorable comments have been made upon Mr. Free's address, as being, so practical and inspiring, and something which his hearers would retain. He endeavored to show them the advantages of higher education on all sides, but emphasizing the oft disputed financial gain, as well. He also gave personal examples of men who "have achieved" thru grit and perseverance.

Following the program the Parent-Teacher's Association served ice-cream and then the graduating class and teachers had a picnic luncheon. In the afternoon the teachers entertained the class at the De Luxe theatre.

The pupils who have been taking manual training and sewing had some of their work on exhibit, which received much well-merited praise. The sewing was all hand work and showed what can be accomplished by regular instruction.

FIRST TO "TAKE THE BISCUIT"

History Relates How French Baker Was the Means of Originating Well-Known Term.

To "take the biscuit" is a common phrase. But who was the first person to be so distinguished?

He was a baker by trade and he received it from a French count, says a writer in Stray Stories. The count lived in the times when a French nobleman could, if he chose, send an outrider to a neighboring town that he intended honoring with his presence, saying he required an omelette made with a thousand eggs, and the innkeeper had to produce one or suffer for it.

This outriding business is a tremendous asset in making people get busy on your behalf.

In this way the biscuit was discovered. A certain French noble sent the aforementioned outrider with the command that a cake was to be prepared for him that would taste different from all other cakes.

The baker, on receiving the order, mixed up—and wasted—several pounds of flour and fruit, but they all tasted much of a muchness. In despair, he left the last batch of underdone dough in sheer fright, as time was getting on, and went to consult with baker No. 2.

During his absence, his young son wandered into the bakehouse, and seeing a batch of underdone dough set to work and rolled it out and stamped it into small cakes, then baked them. When done to a crisp, golden brown, he took them out and gazed on them with pardonable pride.

In the meantime the father, being no wiser as to the production of a new cake, returned, looking the ghost of his old self—to use a quite original expression.

When he saw the little yellow biscuits he was speechless with astonishment and wanted to know whence they came. The son explained and invited his sire to taste one. They were so delicious that all fear left his countenance.

He waited the coming of the august count with impatience. In due course the gentleman arrived, with the usual aristocratic hunger and thirst on him. The cakes were so to his liking that he ate the lot and gave the baker the Grand Order of the Biscuit into the bargain.

Chloroamine Latest Antiseptic.

Another new antiseptic is reported from the war zone. Its name is chloroamine, and it was first prepared in 1905 by Doctor Chattaway, who, however, did not suspect its antiseptic properties. Dr. H. D. Dakin (who introduced the sodium hypochlorite solution mixed with boric acid for the disinfection of wounds), Dr. J. B. Cohen and Dr. J. Kenyon, report in the British Medical Journal that the germicidal action of chloroamine is about four times that of sodium hypochlorite, is less irritating and can be used at a concentration five to ten times as great.

Chloroamine is obtained by adding sodium hypochlorite to toluene sulphonamide. It is colorless, crystalline, and when in solution can be kept for many months. It is not corrosive or toxic and does not coagulate protein.

Staff Surgeon A. P. Fisher reports several cases of serious wounds of the mouth and jaw treated with chloroamine, and says they are "distinctly encouraging."

Egyptian Style in Dresses.

Dresses have gradually been getting lower at the neck and shorter at the hem for some time until now it is proposed to do away with troublesome gowns altogether. The latest style is Egyptian, or a la Cleopatra. It consists of many yards of ribbon wrapped around the form, a few pearls and numerous safety pins. Wherever the ribbon is shy stenciling takes its place. Any old design will do. A few dabs of paint and bronze powder blown over it and there you are, in the latest evening outfit. This now style has been introduced by the Russian ballet. If it ever gets a foothold it will send many ladies' tailors, modistes and dressmakers back to the tubs. Already it is said a Fifth avenue house has laid in a large supply of stenciled designs of paint and of gold and bronze dust, and it is asserted in this store that fashionable women have already sent their maids there to learn how to do the stenciling.—New York Sun.

World's Greatest Racehorse.

The distinction is claimed by America for Meddler, the best all-round horse in the world, who has never been beaten in a race, and whose sons and daughters have won nearly half a million sterling.

Meddler is the son of the wondrous St. Gatien and the great Busybody, turf luminaries of 25 years ago. Clarence H. Mackay bought Meddler from the estate of the late William C. Whitney for £10,000. The stallion's record year was 1904, when his progeny won £44,000 for the season. Last year in England alone they won £17,040 in 65 races. The other day in New York, Glasgow, a chestnut yearling daughter, brought £1,100 at a sale of Mackay horses, some of them Meddler's offspring. In all, 15 were sold for £10,000. Meddler was born in England 26 years ago.

About Portugal

Lisbon's Beautiful Harbor.

PORTUGAL, the most recent nation to be drawn into the maelstrom of the European war, was once a part of the ancient Roman province of Lusitania, says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic society.

With a population scarcely exceeding the combined population of New York city, Jersey City, and Newark, and an area in Europe less than the state of Indiana, Portugal has not played a major role in the politics of continental Europe in many years, not, in fact, since Wellesley, afterward the Duke of Wellington, landed his English forces and, with the aid of native troops, defeated Soult and Massena, Napoleon's marshals, in the two peninsular campaigns.

But the colonial empire of Portugal is out of all proportion to the importance of the home country. In fact there were, at the beginning of the war, only three other countries in Europe—Great Britain, France, and Germany—whose flags floated over more territory beyond the boundaries of the home country. The combined area of the New England and North Atlantic states would equal less than—one-fourth of the territory under the dominion of the tiny republic occupying the western edge of the Iberian peninsula, whose navigators in the fifteenth and sixteenth century were the wonders of the world. Yet all this vast territory is held by 8,000 colonial troops, supplemented by native armies.

Peasants Are Poets.

A curious anomaly is to be found among the peasants of Portugal, who are classified as among the most illiterate of Western Europe, yet among the most intelligent. Many of the farmers—three-fifths of the population is devoted to agricultural pursuits—have a remarkable gift for versification, and many of the poems of the country are handed down from generation to generation without being recorded. The peasants also are noted for their sobriety, and yet the annual production of wine exceeds 25 gallons for each inhabitant. So great, in fact, is the product of the vineyards that in the cities the various qualities of water are discussed with keener interest than the grades of wine.

While Portugal's maritime glory is a thing of the past, a large number of Portuguese still follow the sea for a livelihood, and the fishing industry is important. The Portuguese sardines, however, are preserved in Italian olive oil, although one-fifteenth of the cultivated area of the nation is given over to olive groves, for the production of oils of a cheap grade.

The Portuguese peasant woman is an important bread winner, but she receives for her day's labor of 16 hours in the field only a shilling or less, while the men get two shillings.

One of the profitable and extremely popular "industries" of the rural population is a placid laying in wait for tourists who attempt to motor through the country on the less-frequented and often impassable public roads. With an ox-team the peasant waits at a favorable spot until a motorist, traveling on an automobile on which an import tax of $120 has been collected by the Portuguese government, sticks in the mud. To haul out such an unfortunate is often more profitable than several days' work in the wheat, maize, or rice fields.

Lisbon's Beautiful Harbor.

The harbor of Lisbon, where the seizure of the German merchant ships precipitated Portugal into the war, is one of the most beautiful in all Europe, ranking scarcely second to Naples and Constantinople. The city is about the size of Pittsburgh, and has been the political center of the nation since it was wrested from the Moors in the middle of the twelfth century by Affonso Henriques, the founder of the kingdom. It was the English who aided Affonso in his war against the Moors, and the following century the two countries effected an alliance which has existed unbroken during the succeeding 700 years, save for such sporadic interruptions as when Napoleon forced the little kingdom to declare war against the island empire.

The Portuguese, especially those of Lisbon, are a pleasure-loving people. They are fond of sports of many sorts, including the bull-fight, but the toreador is not the idol in this country that he is in Spain, nor are the contests as fierce. Horses are seldom if ever sacrificed in the Portuguese trocaderos.

Lisbon is an even greater "night city" than was Paris, the streets appearing at their busiest usually at 3 a. m. The principal thoroughfares are admirably kept nowadays but as late as 1835 a "clean-up" campaigner was in a woeful minority when he began to urge the authorities to put a stop to such practices as breaking horses in the streets and singeing pigs in the main avenues of trade. He also protested against keeping pigs alive in the streets "or tied to the doors," while he thought it advisable to put an end to the custom of allowing dead animals to lie for indefinite periods in the streets.

There are about 100 journals published in Portugal, the majority of these being of a political nature, and many of them are owned by the leaders of the various political parties.

It has been said that "if Lisbon turns Turk tomorrow all Portugal will wear the turban," so when the monarchy was overthrown in 1910, after 100 persons had been killed and 500 wounded in the capital, King Manuel taking refuge in England, it was a matter of course that the rest of the nation would quietly acquiesce in the new order of things. Portugal today has much the same outward form of government as our own. Each parliament is supposed to last three years; senators are elected for six years, and presidents for four years. The head of the government receives $20,000 a year. Money, however, is reckoned chiefly in reis, and, therefore, even a day laborer's wages is sweet to the ear, for it takes 20 reis to make a penny.

Portugal's transcendant contribution to world history was the colonization of Brazil, the largest nation in South America and the third largest in the Western hemisphere. While Brazil was discovered by Columbus' companion, Pinzon, and formal possession taken by him in the name of Spain, Cabral landed in 1500, a year later, and proclaimed it Portuguese territory. Portugal settled the country and ruled it until 1822 when, under the leadership of the Portuguese prince, Dom Pedro, independence from the mother county was declared.

Double Cause for Tears.

A favorite limerick is brought to mind by the following tale from the Orient:

Timur-lenk, the Tartar invader, was very ugly and, catching a glimpse of himself in the mirror, he burst into tears. The court jester began weeping also and kept it up long after his master had stopped.

Timur looked at him in astonishment. "I wept with reason," he said, "at beholding my own ugliness—I, the lord of so many lands. But I do not understand why you should thus despair."

"If you, my lord," replied the jester, "wept for two hours after seeing yourself in the mirror for an instant, is it not natural that I, who see you all day long, should weep longer than you?"

The One Thing Needful.

GREAT BRITISH FORT

ADEN ONE OF EMPIRE'S MOST PRIZED POSSESSIONS.

By No Means the Least of Strategic Points on the Way to India and the Far East—Can Defy Mighty Fleets.

Aden is the unhappy gateway into happy Araby, and, moreover, it is one of the foremost strategic points on England's trade route through the Red sea to India and the Far East, says a war primer issued by the National Geographic society, which tells of the first stronghold on the London-India route to withstand a severe attack by the Turks. One Arabian author says of the country behind Aden, that country known as Arabia Felix: "Its inhabitants are all hale and strong, sickness is unknown, nor are there poisonous plants or animals; nor fools, nor blind people, and the women are ever young; the climate is like paradise and one wears the same garment summer and winter."

Aden, however, where the British and Turkish forces are opposing one another, enjoys none of these advantages catalogued as inherent in Arabia Felix.

Spread over its ragged hills of sun-made ash and cinder, sweltering, gloomy, and unrelieved by vegetation, Aden invites little attention in peace times. "Aden is a valley surrounded by the sea; its climate is so bad that it turns wine into vinegar in the space of ten days," complained one disappointed Arab traveler of the Middle Ages. And in the centuries since his visit the climate has not improved. In spite, nevertheless, of the terrible heat that gathers over Aden's valley and clings to its low hills and its lack of a good water supply, the place maintains a reputation as a healthy one.

The town is built on desolate volcanic rocks that constitute a peninsula near the entrance to the Red sea. The strait of Bab-el-Mandeb lies 100 miles away; and Aden is the British Gibraltar toward the Indian ocean that keeps an eternal vigilance over the safety of the rich English commerce that goes this way. The British captured and annexed the place on January 16, 1839, since which time they have made the place a most emphatic fortress, one of the strongest anywhere in southern Asia. Money and labor without stint have been expended there to make the city absolutely impregnable from land and sea. Massive lines of defense, strengthened by a broad moat, guard the neck of the isthmus, and these defenses conceal powerful batteries. Turrets, hidden forts, mined harbors, great naval guns, obstruction piers, barracks, redoubts in solid rock, all are elements in the British plan to guard this southern end of their important trade route beyond all possible chance of failure against superior and sustained attack. Aden may be last in matters of climate, but it is among the first in matters of fortification.

The narrow peninsula on which this queen of southern fortresses rears itself is only about fifteen miles in circumference. It is the bowl of an extinct volcano. The lofty hills around are the remains of the crater sides, and, of these, Shem Shem has an altitude of nearly 1,800 feet. All food and water for use on the peninsula has to be brought in from the outside. Much of the water is supplied from the government condensers, which were designed to make the fortress independent in case of war's necessities. The population of 44,000 is a mixture of all the elements of the Orient, with an interspersing of western drummers and British administrators and military men. Arabs, Chinese, Persians, Turks, Hindus, Parsees, Egyptians, Soudanese and Jews compose the stolid, stable population that endures the climate year in and year out, and carries on the labors of the great fortress camp.

Fortune in Waste Paper Basket.

The days when poor men may prospect for gold are pretty well past, but it seems as though a substitute, perhaps less picturesque and exciting, offers itself in the waste paper baskets of business corporations.

Not very long ago the Hemingway Paper Stock company purchased from the banking firm of Townsend, Whelen & Co., in Philadelphia, a batch of old correspondence and papers, to be used as paper pulp. The price paid was $70.

An employee of the purchasing firm began going over the documents and letters and discovered a great number of old, foreign stamps. He reported the matter to his employers and they ordered him to go through the whole lot and pick out every stamp that seemed unusual. A vast number were collected and when shown to A. F. Herkels, president of the Philadelphia Stamp club, he appraised their value at over $75,000, thus giving the firm a profit of more than a thousand dollars on each dollar of their purchase.

Needs Must.

"I think I'll go in for aquatic sports this summer."

"I didn't know you cared for that sort of thing."

"I don't, but that suburban lot I bought seems to be better adapted for boating and swimming than for anything else."

Give Up Coat Tails to Help Win War.

As a measure of war economy, the schoolboys of the famous English school, Harrow, will cut off their immemorial coat tails and also wear fewer buttons.

Korea's Old Capital

THE ROOFS OF SEOUL

SEOUL, the old capital of Korea, is undergoing changes. Until recently its wall was intact and gave a picturesqueness to the city pleasing to western eyes. There were eight gates—four of them larger than the others and facing the cardinal points. The main street of the city ran from the east to the west gates and from the south to the north. At their intersection stood the old bell, which was struck at intervals through the day—at 6 in the morning, at noon, at 6 at night, at 9 and then at midnight, writes Frederick Starr in the Chicago News.

The bell, like most conspicuous objects in Korea, had a story and its sound in the ears of many was a wail of terror. They say that when the bell was to be made it was a matter of public interest and of popular contribution. Everyone gave something to its make-up. Mirrors, rings, ornaments, coins, all were given to the melting pot. When finally the day came for its casting, a great crowd gathered. The metal was finally molten ready to be run. The word was given and the hot liquid was poured into the mold. When it was somewhat cooled the casting was uncovered bit by bit, and, lo, it was imperfect! Broken to pieces, it was again molten on another day and again it was flawed. A third time the mishap occurred and the people were well-nigh discouraged at the evil omen.

The master workman ordered a final trial. Again the crowd assembled, again the broken fragments, submitted to the heat, gradually melted until the crucial moment was near. At that instant an unknown woman of the common people pressed through the crowd, her baby in her arms; coming to the pot of molten metal, she cried, "But you have not yet my contribution," raised the baby and hurled it into the seething mass.

The moment had come for the pouring and before the cry of horror had died away upon the lips of the crowd, the signal was given and the hot metal flowed down into the mold. When it was uncovered the bell emerged perfect; the sacrifice had been effective; but through the years mothers at the stroke of the old bell have heard in it the wailing of the child, shrieking, "Oh, mother, my mother!"

When Women Walk Abroad.

In the old days, and not so very long ago, the bell gave the signal for various movements. Women, save the most common and rustic, were not permitted freely on the streets. From midnight to noon and from noon to 9 at night, men and boys were free to roam, but women and girls were expected to keep indoors. But when the old bell struck at the hour of 9, men and boys betook themselves to their houses and females were privileged to walk the streets till the midnight bell drove them home.

Those days are past, but even today few women are seen upon the streets, and those of any social standing have the face almost concealed. The covering is curious. It is apparently a garment for the upper body, with neck space and sleeves, but it is not worn as such, but only laid upon the head, with sleeves dangling at the sides, back falling capelike over the shoulders and the front coming down on both sides of the face, nearly concealing it. In Seoul this garment is regularly of a dull green cloth.

To an extraordinary degree Seoul is a city of bridges. Not that it is intersected by rivers or important streams; there are only small brooks or canals within the city. Nor do these canals make the city a Venice. There are no gondolas here. But by the scant water in these streams women squat in throngs, doing laundry work. The water often is far from clean, but what does that matter? The worker uses a little wooden club or paddle and beats the clothing upon flat stones. Garments to be laundered are usually ripped along the seams, the pieces washed, and then again put together after the work is done. The bridges are usually of stone, well built and durable. No mortar or cement seems to be used, but the cut stones are fitted rather carefully. On many of the bridges in the city stone pillars are carved to grotesque animal forms at the top.

The royal palaces have seen their days of glory. The one most used by the late king was the north palace. Some of the buildings are gone, some are neglected. The two most interesting were the great audience hall and the pavilion by the lotus pond. Approach to the audience hall was strictly regulated. There were nine grades of officers, each with two degrees. The paved way leading up to the audience hall was evenly spaced by pairs of stone posts, one on either side, eighteen pairs in all; each pair indicated the distance to which one grade of official might approach on occasions of ceremony. The pavilion is a large rectangular building, open at the sides below; the floor of the second story is supported by metal capped granite columns, typical Korean construction. Here in good weather the ruler and his guests enjoyed music and dancing and the beauties of the fine lotus pond. This year these palace grounds were utilized for the notable industrial exhibition, commemorating and illustrating five years of the new administration of the country.

Useful Stone Monsters.

The old gate of entrance to the palace grounds still stands, facing south. From it leads a straight wide avenue at the sides of which are two strange stone monsters, worship of which would surely break no commandment of the decalogue. These uncouth creatures have a story, of course. It seems that when this north palace was first built it was damaged by fire coming from the south. By the way, north in Korea is the best quarter; it is beneficent. Repairing the damage was time wasted; fire came again and again. At last these stone monsters were constructed and set up facing the south point of danger. From that time on the danger ceased.

With Japanese influence, immigration, administration, there has grown up within the city a definite Japanese section. Japan street is strongly characteristic. The change is instant. One passes from Korea to Japan in a moment's time. Dress, language, aspect, shops, goods, movements, manners—all are different.

With the Japanese has come the jinrikisha vogue. On the whole the Korean has not taken very kindly to the little cart.

Korean Shop Displays.

In the old days the few wide streets of Seoul were crowded by the shops. All the early visitors dilate upon this and find it disagreeable. Korean shops, like oriental shops in general, are open to the losses and the shopkeeper mourns his once proud display. The shops are not as a whole of great interest. There are shoe shops, hat shops, basket shops, seed and grain shops, and the like. These are true selling shops. Then there are carpenter shops and coffin shops and tinners' chimney shops, where the work goes on as well as sales.

One of the most curious is the wedding and funeral outfitter's. His is a rental, not a sales place. It is only a few feet in frontage and here the stock still encroaches on the street. Here are the things necessary for the two great family ceremonies. Here are great wooden candles, carved with dragons, birds and flowers, all gaudy with painting; here are wooden geese—the goose being a symbol of conjugal happiness; here are the two boys, "heavenly messengers," bringing felicity; here are bottomless chairs for ancestral spirits to occupy on anniversaries. Inside are other things—all to rent cheaply, always in evidence, though perhaps more so at the New Year season (Feb. 4 this year) than at other times.

A Hard Creditor.

Many a Southern darky's mind is stored with bits of philosophy that are frequently as true as they are quaint. Here is an instance:

"One wintry day," says a Washington man, "I met an old darky in rags plodding along. The cold wind beat through the many holes in his tattered garments. Yet despite his evident poverty he was carrying a whole side of bacon on his shoulder.

"Uncle," I asked, "why didn't you spend your money on a warm coat instead of on all that bacon?"

"'Well, suh,' said the old man, gravely, 'when I asks my back for credit I gits it.' Then, patting his stomach, he added:

"'But dis heah, suh dis heah, always calls for cash.'"

Salt a Necessity for Dairy Cows

Deprived of It for Long, They Suddenly Suffer Complete Breakdown.

EXPERIMENTS REVEAL INTERESTING FACTS.

Salting of Hay in Stacking or Baling Now Considered Excellent Plan.

Experiments conducted at the Wisconsin State Experiment Station prove conclusively that salt should be supplied to dairy cows unless the ration furnishes a sufficiency thereof. It is calculated that the minimum quantity in the food to keep a cow of 1000 lbs. live weight in flourishing health is that which is equivalent to ¾ oz. of salt per day, and that a cow in milk needs as much more as will restore the proportion removed in the milk, namely, a little over ½ oz. of salt for every 20 lbs. of milk.

"In every case the cows exhibited an abnormal appetite for salt after having been deprived of it for 2 or 3 weeks, but in no case did the health of the animal, as shown by the general appearance, the live weight, or the yield of milk, appear to be affected until a much longer time had elapsed. This period of immunity varied with individual cows from less than a month to more than a year. There was finally reached a condition of low vitality in which a sudden and complete breakdown occurred. This stage was marked by loss of appetite, a generally haggard appearance, lusterless eyes, a rough coat, and a very rapid decline in both live weight and yield of milk. If salt was supplied at this period recovery was rapid. In one case potassium chlorid was given instead of common salt (sodium chlorid.) Considerable of the potassium salt was eaten, though cows ordinarily refuse to touch it, and recovery followed as quickly as when common salt was supplied—evidence that not the lack of the sodium but the lack of chlorin was responsible for the troubles. The breakdown due to the lack of salt usually occurred after calving, when the milk flow was heavy, and generally the cows giving the largest amount of milk were the first to show distress."

Farmers who salt their hay when stacking or baling have found the plan an excellent and profitable one. The salt more than pays for itself in the increased weight of the hay, and besides improving the feed, it removes the danger of musting by checking the growth of molds when the moisture content of the hay is high.

Twenty pounds of salt to each ton of hay should be used, which should be sprinkled on by hand as each three feet of the hay is stacked.—Adv.

WORTHY OF STUDY BY ALL

Lessons Taught in the Book of Ruth Should Find Comprehension in Every Mind.

The Book of Ruth is the greatest pastoral idyl in literature. It is founded on loving kindness, the loving kindness of the Moabitess revealed to her family, and the loving kindness of Boaz, the wealthy Israelite, to Ruth, his kinswoman. It also contains the germ of that great-heartedness which is the center of the gospel of Christian love.

It is a book that opens with tears and famine and ends with the sound of wedding bells. The story turns upon the straightforwardness of Boaz, who showed kindness and manliness to Ruth, a member of a nation that was Israel's foe, and in that kindness founded a new house, the house of Jesse and David, the royal line that begat a greater than David.

It was first the mingling of the blood of the Jew and Gentile, symbolic of the cosmopolitan width of the Christian religion. It was the sign that that religion was not to be founded upon wealth, or upon social caste, but upon the large, wholesome love of the human heart. Boaz is immortal among Bible heroes for his kindness, his plain, everyday generosity, his sense of protection and care for the lonely, unprotected Moabitish girl, his dead kinsman's wife, who in her poverty gleaned in his harvest field after the reapers. Boaz gave order to his reapers that they should allow her to glean even among the sheaves of barley, and by his large-heartedness gained a wife, and, more than that, made a place for himself in that immortal company who are renowned for naught but for being kind.—Christian Herald.

Reasonable Advance.

There is a young author in Baltimore who is determined to achieve fame in the writing line if it takes his whole life. Accordingly, he is even willing to defray the cost of putting on the market the numerous novels he writes from year to year.

On the occasion of his last visit to his publisher, however, he was somewhat vexed, a rather unusual thing for him. "Why," asked he, "do you charge me more this time than before?"

"Well," said the publisher, with the utmost frankness, "the compositors were constantly falling asleep over your last novel."—Harper's Magazine.

"My ancestors came over in the Mayflower," announced the man who prides himself on his blue blood.

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" better than calomel and can not salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—Adv.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

MYSTERY OF SINGER SOLVED

Ordinary concerts had grown rather stale in Middleton, where everybody sings, or thinks he can.

So a novelty was arranged, in which each performer was to appear in a fancy dress and sing a suitable song. The first items went off very well, although when Miss Antike came on in a simple, girlish gown and sang "For Ever and For Ever" the audience got nervous, and thought she meant to do so.

Then the village crier appeared in a sailor rig and declaimed "Asleep in the Deep" in a voice high pitched and cracked.

"Who is he?" "What character does he represent?" were the questions the listeners asked each other wildly.

Then came the usual voice from the rear of the hall, saying:

"Why, 'e's Sing-Bad the Sailor!"—New York Mail.

FAR BETTER.

Quite Appropriate.

A clever newspaper man tells a story of a friend of his whose small son asked why the collections at the Sunday meetings were taken up in pans.

"Because, my boy," answered the witty father, "a pan is the most fitting vehicle in which to get the dough."

Hopeless Insolence.

"It must be a terrible thing to know that you are to be shot at sunrise," commented the highly imaginative person.

"Yes," answered the lazy citizen; "it's bad enough to have to get up at sunrise, without going through the rest of it."

A Utilitarian.

"Mrs. Twobble has taken up a new fad?"

"What is it?"

"China decorating."

"Is Mr. Twobble interested?"

"Not at all. He said he would rather see a broiled lamb chop on a plate than a whole flock of bluebirds."

Beginning of the End.

"Just think, dearest," said the mere man in the case, who was about to break into the freight-paying class, "only three more days and we shall be one."

"Yes," rejoined the fair suffragette, "and I'm right here to inform you that I intend to be the one."

Universal Instinct.

"Are you a candidate?"

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "There's no use denying it. Every man is a candidate for something; only in most instances his chance is so small that it isn't worth while for him to declare himself."

Demonstration.

"I know you don't believe in gambling, and I play cards and bet on the races, but I can prove my moral superiority in so doing."

"Then prove it."

"You are a good man—I don't deny it. But I am a bettor."

The Way of It.

"Belle says she married a paradox."

"How's that?"

"Well, when she first married him he was quite tall, but ever since she has found he is always short."

URIC ACID--GOING--GOING--GONE

"Anuric" Will Not Fail to Stop Your Backache.

People are realizing more and more every day that the kidneys, just as do the bowels, need to be flushed occasionally. The kidneys are an eliminative organ and are constantly working, separating the poisons from the blood. Under this continual and perpetual action they are apt to congest, and then trouble starts. Uric acid backs up into the system, causing rheumatism, neuralgia, dropsy and many other serious disturbances. Doctor Pierce of Buffalo, New York, advocates that every one should drink plenty of pure water between meals. Every day should exercise in the outdoor air sufficiently to sweat profusely, and from time to time stimulate the kidney action by means of "Anuric." This preparation has been thoroughly tried out at his Sanitarium, in the same way as his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women and "Golden Medical Discovery," the standard herbal system tonic, (both of which now come in tablet form for convenience of carrying and taking). "Anuric" is now being introduced here, and many local people are daily testifying to its perfectness.

When you have backache, dizzy spells or rheumatism, heed nature's warning. It means that you are a victim to uric acid poisoning. Then ask your druggist for "Anuric" and you will very soon become one of hundreds who daily give their thankful indorsement to this powerful enemy to uric acid.

If you have that tired, worn-out feeling, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia, or if your sleep is disturbed by too frequent urination, get Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets at drug store, full treatment $1.00, or send 10c. for trial package to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y.

With the Essayists.

Of all the displays of art the essay is the most indefinable, the most subtle, because it has no scheme, no program.

It does not set out to narrate or to prove; it has no dramatic purpose, no imaginative theme; its essence is a sympathetic self-revelation, just as in talk a man may speak frankly of his own experiences and feelings, and yet avoid any suspicion of egotism, if his confidences are designed to illustrate the thoughts of others rather than to provide a contrast and a self-glorification.

The essayist gives rather than claims; he compares rather than parades. He is led by his interest in others to be interested in himself, and it is as a man rather than as an individual that he takes the stage.

He must be surprised at the discoveries he makes about himself, rather than complacent; he must condone his own discrepancies rather than exult in them.

Fertilizers From Municipal Waste.

A survey of the nation's resources in fertilizer materials has drawn attention to the large supply of these to be found in the accumulation of garbage in cities. This waste material contains nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, which are recognized as essential to the production of large crops. Valuable as these elements are to the farms of the country, the garbage in which they are found is a source of trouble and expense to the cities. It seems, therefore, that this garbage can be disposed of most advantageously by returning it to the soil in the form of fertilizer.

Trained Crabs Catch Rabbits.

Crabs are put to a curious use on certain parts of the Devonshire foreshore. They are used to catch rabbits. Having located a promising burrow, the snarer takes a crab and affixes a short length of lighted candle to the back of its shell. The behavior of a crab which finds itself in a narrow inclosure is well known. It begins to run. It therefore starts away up the burrow at top rate, and presently the rabbit is horrified at the sight of a jogtrotting flame coming to his sanctuary. Off he goes for the other exit, only to find himself, when he emerges, in a trap.

High School Notes

Last Saturday evening at the Scott home, the Junior Class gave a delightful party with the Seniors, faculty and trustees of the high school as their guests. Many novel and interesting games were played, among which were making hats out of wall paper, writing telegrams of congratulation so that the first letter of each word would spell Commencement, and the presentation, to each Senior, of a favor characteristic of him. Some novel stunts were also "pulled off." An A B C tea-party, a production of Lochinvar and of a Senior class meeting, and a modern tragedy in three acts were played. Fortunes were told, and the guests drank of the Fountain of Youth. Delicious refreshments were served and the evening came to a close. The party was well planned, and everyone had a fine time.

Campbell High School has been fairly successful in debating this year, considering the difficulty we had in securing our teams. We were a week late in getting started in our first debate; this and the fact that two of our debaters were laid up with the grippe at the time and had not fully recovered had something to do with our defeat by both San Jose and Morgan Hill, by the scores 525-508 and 524-521 respectively. These defeats put us at the bottom of the eight schools in this section of the league.

In the next series of debates we were more successful, defeating both Palo Alto and Mountain View, by 17 and 15 points, respectively. This gave us a place at the head of the eight schools in our district. However, the defeats we suffered the first part of the year spoiled our chances for the finals and the championship.

We have a good chance for being even more successful next year as we will have four members of this year's team still with us, and their experience should help them out for the coming year.

At the high school there is a club composed of about fifteen boys who are growing potatoes in competition. The six boys who win out will go to the Davis Agricultural School for a week, with their travelling expenses paid. These boys' agricultural clubs have made themselves famous in the Middle West. This is their second year in California.

People in general are not well informed as to their work in this state. For this reason the local club has secured the consent of Mr. R. M. Hagen, one of the State Club Advisers to give an illustrated lecture at the High School on the evening of Thursday, June 15. It is hoped that as many as can do so will come and learn what the boys are doing in this state to help make agriculture as much a career for an ambitious boy as law or medicine or industry.

On Monday afternoon Ralph Weaver, a San Jose High School boy who went to Washington last year with some of the officials of the agricultural department of the University of California gave the boys a very interesting talk on potatoes. He also told them about his trip to Washington.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutiodal treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building upon the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The vote on attendance gave the prize to the Fifth Grade, which this time was a woven, handled, flower basket, with brass bowl, and bracket for hanging.

The treasurer's report for the year showed that the club has purchased two garbage cans for the grounds; framed four pictures for the rooms, given a Campbell pennant, and this flower basket as prizes to the grades; paid the car fare of the cadet teacher who is assisting in Miss Farley's room, has paid its membership dues to the District State and National Councils of Mothers, and has about $15 in the treasury with which to begin the new year.

Their crowning feat has been the making of all graduation dresses, which hower, will not de displayed until later.
